An aerial photograph of a small, crescent-shaped tropical island in the Indian Ocean. The island is covered in lush green vegetation and has a small white lighthouse on its northern tip. A narrow, light-colored sandy beach or sandbar curves along the southern and eastern edges of the island, separating it from the surrounding water. The water is a vibrant turquoise color, with varying shades indicating different depths and seabed compositions. The sky above is a clear, bright blue with scattered white clouds. The overall scene is idyllic and represents a tropical paradise.
